FIVE years ago students taking chemistry found that class time did not allow them to delve sufficiently into the particular sections of the work that interested them the most; therefore, the Active Atoms was formed.

There are many different groups in the Active Atoms to which one may belong, depending, of course, upon his interests. The largest and most important is the Photography group. Next there is the Element Chart on which the members are working, and there is, also, the Ring and Pin group who will design and make honor pins for the end of the year.
